

MIGRATORY WORDS
presents an evening of poetry

Wednesday, March 1, 2017, 6–8 pm (6:30 reading)
(1101 Bow Valley Trail) Georgetown Inn, Canmore, AB

CHARLES NOBLE
award-winning poet launches

MACK THE NAÏF
available for sale: $25

TIM MURPHY
reads

from collected works

...
he finishes his call
confronts me
“you got problem
this is a bar!”

“you’re old” he says
“I could kill you
and it wouldn’t matter
because I don’t live here”

I just look at him
trying to imply library

I whip my tongue to the side
behind my lower lip
“you live on Saturn?” p.225

Noble has authored books since the heyday of Canadian literary nationalism and is master of the long poem.

Noble’s Naïf spins mini-narratives.

Of Sally O, his selected poems: “What does add up, from the crazy arithmetic of Noble’s verse, are witty, arresting descriptions that put Noble in league with Kroetsch... and Purdy...” ~ Kaya Fraser, Canadian Literature.

...
I am alone in my own danger
when someone passes me
eating an apple.

The parrot with fangs
riding on my shoulder
mocks me with my own words.

No one can say
why anything happens at all.

~ Tim Murphy

Murphy began writing professionally in the 70s.

The transcendence of the Rockies inspires this Master Carpenter, energy consultant, wordsmith to build energy infused performances.

